Online Travel Subsidiary Trials and Proof of Concept

The wholly owned subsidiary Travelucion carried out a proof of concept trial in 2017, covering a single Caribbean destination, receiving approximately 3.6 million tourists annually and, focusing only on 100% automated online travel sales (non assisted sales). The results of this trial were promising, netting $2.5 million in audited online travel sales for the year ending 31 May 2017. The company now feels that it has assembled the right team of professionals to take this venture to the next level, adding over 128 new destinations, while at the same time, gaining support from the world's largest travel sector players; Amadeus, IATA, Juniper and Constellation Software Inc.

Domain Lease Negotiations

The final step of RevoluVIP is the concept of broad travel distribution across multiple country specific web properties. Deploying international blanket coverage of country/destination specific travel websites, each displaying profound national travel offers, while, at the same time, capturing increased destination based web search visitors, organically. Management is currently negotiating the lease of the "VIP Collection" 181 domain names and, legacy web traffic, as displayed in the corporate presentation. As these domain names and websites are the property of a company associated with a related party, TSX exchange approval is sought.

Complete Website Overhaul

Each website will be completely transformed under the RevoluVIP program, with fresh themes and, the latest cutting edge XML and GDS technologies. The current websites, in terms of their current content and design displayed on the "VIP Collection", should, therefore, be ignored.
